

Winning book coupons in a writing competition

Fu Chun Lam Chris

Hi John,

I am pleased to tell you that I win in a writing competition.

You may ask me why I joined this competition. It was because I wanted to get the prize, $500 book coupons and let people know the importance of organ donation.

My writing was about a car hit a man and made him blind. He needed to transplant eyes from a dead body, but donations of dead body's eyes were given to him because the dead person's family refused it. At last, the man was suffered so he committed suicide. This story raised the problem of organ donations.

When I knew I won this competition, I was so surprised and excited because I only wanted people to know the importance of organ donation.

I will use these coupons to buy a cook book. I will buy a book for you too. What kind of book do you want? Please write soon.

All the best,

Chris