This morning I made a strange dream.

I saw a Superman dress in my dream. I thought that I could save the earth just like the Superman movies! After that, it came true in my dream. I put on my Superman dress and tested it in the park. I could really fly! So I went to different places in my city. I went back home because I was tired. I turned on the television and watched the news. The news reporter said that there's a robbery ongoing, so I quickly turned off the television and flew to the jewelery shop where the robber was. I immediately grabbed him tightly 'till the police arrived.

The police finally arrived. They congratulated me for catching the robber. Not quite long after that, some news reporters rushed to me and asked me questions. I didn't realized that I was on TV right now because I was too happy to know I was on TV.

Shortly after the case, I was famous. Lots of people wanted to have my autograph. I was surrounded by people when I got on the street.

I was called to get up before my dream finished completely.
