Ella's Decision

Last month, Ella and her mum were reading a story about a lazy grasshopper. Ella said to mum, 'Mum! I think if I were the grasshopper, I would work hard in summer so that I can have good in the winter!' Mum giggled at Ella's response.

Last week, Ella's dad gave her a gaming console. It was her birthday present. She took it and thanked her dad. She went into her room and played video games.

Then, Ella became obsessed with it. Tests were coming. She did not do revision. She felt guilty. She decided to make a schedule. She studied on weekday. She played video games weekend. She thought the tests were challenging. Suddenly, a fairy appeared in front of her. The little fairy said, 'What was troubling you? Ella was shocked. She was quivering. The fairy used her magic to help Ella. She became smart instantly. Next, her test results were outstanding. She felt guilty because her good results were not relied on her own ability. In the end, she has learnt that she needs to make a schedule and work harder. She thanked the fairy. She said to the fairy. 'I want to get good results by myself.' The fairy said, 'Good!'
